An absolute must-do

Review of: The Original Mumbai by Dawn - Recommended by Nigella Lawson & Nat Geo Traveller!

This was without a doubt one of the best tours my husband and I have taken anywhere in the world. You cannot see Mumbai this up-close at any other hour and fully appreciate the way the city manages to function. And Aditya was exceptionally knowledgeable and engaged. The tour was honest and real and respectful of the people we saw. Unforgettable experience.

The most thoughtful and insightful way to explore Mumbai

I'm a local and I brought foreign friends on this tour to learn about Mumbai - we did the Mumbai by Dawn and Dharavi tours. Both of them were absolutely phenomenal, even as a local, I learnt a lot, and all my friends said this was the best tour they had ever been on (and we had been in India for 10 days already). The guides were thoughtful, insightful, funny and fantastic. You MUST do this if you're in India.

Knowledgeable, flexible highly skilled luxury guide service--truly will individualize with super guides

What a great find this is! Formed less than two years ago, this small group of skilled guides has created individualized tours for high end customers. Our first contact, following a NY Times review, was the beginning of a wonderful experience. The staff listened to our interests and worked with us to plan and deliver a tour that gave us in-depth briefing on the Mumbai art scene with introductions to curators of museums and galleries by an highly experienced and educated (Chicago Institute) artist; two whirlwind days of neighborhood tours, by a university grad with deep insights into the history, architecture, culture and politics of the places that include textile mills and bazaars, spice markets, shops and cricket fields. The staff are young, attentive resourceful, smart and creative. Their planning was impeccable and flexible as our preferences were wonderful, high skilled and delivered exactly what we needed. We have been to the world.

Best thing I did in India!!!

The Mumbai at dawn tour was 100% worth the early start!! Our guide got everyone energized and in the mood in the first few minutes and from that point on the knowledge, enthusiasm, hospitality and phenomenal dad jokes made this the ultimate cultural highlight of my India trip!! I didn't think anything could out perform the Taj Mahal but this tour nailed it!! A must do, off the beaten path experience that I'll never forget! 10/10!!!

And sometimes, we get really lucky!

Such is the scale of Mumbai, you really need a guide to take you around. I've gone with the best in town, No Footprints. They really get you under the city's skin with a variety of bespoke tours.

▲ Ice-cream stall, Mumbai

No Footprints Mumbai's Khau Gully (street food walk) offers a condensed taste of the city's street food, starting with the ubiquitous vada pao at the Aram vada pao stall at the grand CST railway station - serving spiced, mashed potato fritter, deep-fried, then pressed into pao (white bread) painted with chutney. A short saunter across is Mumbai's oldest surviving eatery, Pancham Puriwala, a magnet for migrant labourers drawn to its fluffy puris and gravied potatoes.

A high-end vacation doesn't have to mean spending big dollars. Here are 10 cities where you can have upscale experiences without paying premium prices.

Hire a Private Guide Compared with other large cities, private guide are a manageable expense in Mumbai. You can find a guide through online search and on TripAdvisor.com. No Foot Prints and Bombaywalla are well-regarded local tour companies.

My guide, Harshvardhan Tanwar (Harsh for short), shows me his Bombay. "Mumbai is a city, Bombay is an emotion," he says. We visit the docks at dawn and watch women haggle for baskets of Bombay duck, which is, in fact, a lizardfish. We meet the city's dabbawallas, a network of men who pick up Mumbaikar's lunch boxes from home and deliver them to their offices.
